For non-initiates, the Budha Bar Hotel is an ideal place to relax and live an eastern extreme experience in a refined setting, far away from the cliches and excess of certain wealthy ostentatious palaces. It is located in the heart of Paris, between Place Madeleine, Place de la Concorde, in the Faubourg Saint Honore, the finest Haute Couture and luxury shopping district of Paris. The designer Francois Walper did a great job restoring in the old building history. He's having to both inspired a powerful source selected components to achieve a harmonious arrangement, rich but not show off. There is a feel of serenity in the air. This and that is explained by the amount of work necessary to this exemplary restoration, results and harmoniously arranged with attention to detail. But it was also impregnated by Asian art as a whole by subtly revealing specific knowledge and good taste for the decoration of this hotel.

BUDHA BAR HOTEL IS A FIVE STAR RATING IN 2015, AND WON MANY AWARDS----------

It feels good, the entry open your eyes and walk around your eyes from the ground or have a dragon beneath your feet, the lobby. For all is to observe, contemplate and feel, the Zen ambiance of the home. Huge bouquets of fresh flowers from cherry orchards, immediately evoke Japan, in giant basins. Glowing lanterns above your heads, are attempting your time by the ceiling a stylish roof.---------- Rococo staircase, stylish white leads you to the incredibly appointed rooms, crossing an intimate and refined corridor. Along the wall, a unique material woven silk yellow chick way. Above all, do not hesitate to caress this wall down and feel the effect of this noble material. The rest of the corridor is even as delicate as the just cited material in the silky wall, completes to convince us the determination in the selection of rare material to create an atmosphere of another era. It is definitely the case here.The little touch of detail, leads to be observed that the two digits shape a "03" form as the head of a monkey, a sacred animal in Asia ... Bravo to designer, because nothing is left to hasard, here.

LIFESTYLE EXPERIENCE THROUGH THE BUDHA -BAR DNA OF MIXOLOGY, MAGIC AND MUSIC DISTILLED
The buddha Bar offers a typical Parisian part of the eighteenth mansion with a marked Asian Neo decoration. Red lanterns that illuminate the lobby and corridors create an Asian atmosphere, are suspended from the high ceiling of this 18th century restored building. Took it for 5 year renovation of reaching this result, while keeping the ancient style and Its authentic look.
These many red lanterns, Nepal and stone dragons on all floors are perfectly responding to the embellishing allied to the imperial yellow of the walls. Some floors later, the silhouette of the dragon especially catches my attention to notice that the dragon is found along the walls of the elevator trim paint that intersect with glass, printing this beautiful sacred reptile and everywhere else when I look at the floor.
This same dragon companion is again along the floor carpeting under your feet, while walking on him. The detail of concern is pushed to its climax, with for example number of rooms positioned according to the cardinal points.----------
The initial idea was to print up a Budha, but the owner, has rather preferred a dragon, due respect to the Budha. And room 203 could almost evoke the face of a sign, sacred animal in Asian mythology.----------
We walk to go in one of the room "SUITE", which will soon take my breath away by the beauty, design studies and whose decoration is staggering. A feature of most modern combined Asian decoration has no taste fault. The paintings on the wall, are also viewing pleasure prompt because they come from the Opera Gallery. In so included is the historical (Tables, names of painters, history). To be continued in the next publication, with our culinary critic and design of the hotel.
